Bonfire Night

On the fifth of November, people in the UK celebrate Bonfire Night. In the evening families go to parks and fields to watch big bonfires and colourful fireworks.

The festival remembers an old story from 1605. A man called Guy Fawkes and his friends wanted to destroy the Houses of Parliament in London, but the plan failed.

Today children eat toffee apples and hot soup, and they hold sparklers in their hands. It is cold in November, so everybody wears a hat, a scarf and warm gloves.

Words bonfire = falò failed = fallì sparklers = stelline scintillanti
